MILITARY SITUATION IN THE ADRIATIC BASE

GJENOVICI-BAOSIC-KUMBOR

- GJENOVICI: Seat of Command of the Adriatic Base (Komanda juznog Jadrana)
- BACSIC: Some barracks and gun parks
- KUMBOR: Aviation base
- MILJINE: Military hospital
- ERCEGNOVI: Hospital, barracks for about five hundred (500) men (infantry)
- NJIVICE: The hachure zone was completely prohibited along the shore, and in the interior part of the peninsula there were large excavating and tunneling projects. A submarine base was under construction (In the military centers people must not speak of these projects under penalty of severe punishment).

The entire peninsula of Suterina had been evacuated by the civilian population.

- IN VAL LORA: Large construction projects of "dry docks" (3 or 4 for the repair of trading vessels and warships).

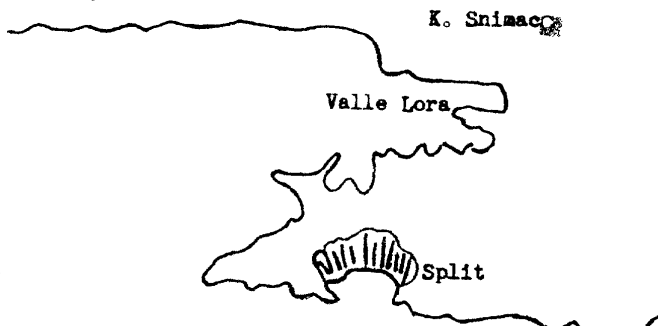

Huts and houses have been built (cement and stone) for housing up to fifteen thousand (15,000) workers. Other lodgings were under construction in the neighborhood, in order to shelter the garrison (active army artillery, to a large extent).

The shipyards of Val Lora will be the best of the Adriatic.

(There are said to be fifteen thousand (15,000) troops among the special workers of the Navy and the Army).

Before the discord with the Cominform, the Soviets had brought pressure to place a permanent military commission there and some senior officers for the organization.
